dear r. lake,

hello, my name is jenny. my son calls me mommy and my husband calls me sweetie and i call you crazy. i have a responsibility to my family and our planet to make certain that both are treated kindly and with great respect. it is obvious that you do not share this same commitment towards your family and our earth. i am frightened by the possibility of severe, irreparable changes in our ecosystem due to science meddling with our food supply. I would think that at least some things are sacred to the people who run the country, (corporations/government, in that order). please consider the consequences of these scientific "experiments" on the future. A future that your grandchildren need to be secured as well as mine.
